Run Date: 04/12/2006

(U//FOUO) The Advanced Intelligence Research Services (AIRS) Center for Digital Content (CDC) is the Agency-authorized Internet importation organization supporting the Agency's mission. Information specialists in the CDC import content from the Internet to the NSA/CSS classified network (WebWorld) for integration into the analysts' workspace and into the tools of SIGINT production. CDC content managers further organize and process the content to enhance its discoverability.

(U//FOUO) In addition, the CDC conducts Internet research and develops working aids and publications, such as Untangling the Web, an Introduction to Internet Research and The Worthwhile Web, a monthly on-line report on Internet research. It also facilitates access to electronic commercially-licensed content, like DowVision News Service and Periscope USNI Military Database. Check out the CDC homepage ("go digitallibrary") for these resources and much more!
