

(U//FOUO) Presentation: The Military Instrument in Chinese Foreign Policy

FROM: Office of China and Korea, Strategic Assessments Cell (S2B)
Unknown
Run Date: 09/25/2006

What: Presentation on "The Military Instrument in Chinese Foreign Policy"

When: September 28th at 10:00-12:00

Where: Ops 1, room 2E099

(U//FOUO) The China-Korea Strategic Assessments Cell would like to invite you to the next installment of the NSA China-Korea Forum entitled " The Military Instrument in Chinese Foreign Policy. " We hope you can join us to hear from the following speakers:

- Lonnie Henley, Deputy National Intelligence Officer for East Asia, ODNI/NIC
- Mark Cozad, Senior Defense Intelligence Expert for China, DIA
- [REDACTED] Senior Military Analyst, China-Taiwan Issue Group, CIA

Synopsis:

(U) During a time of political and military weakness, Beijing relied on military power for ensuring Chinese security in the face of challenges from hostile superpowers and their clients. The reform-era brought with it changes in China's national objectives and foreign policy posture. Beijing now espouses a policy of promoting a peaceful international environment; has integrated itself into the global economy; and involved itself in a host of multilateral institutions. This has resulted in an increase in the costs of using force. Despite the apparent emergence of the PRC as more of a status quo power, the People's Liberation Army (PLA) has accelerated its drive toward modernization. The next installment of the China Forum Series will examine the question of what role the Chinese military plays in Beijing's policies and objectives.

Administrative Info:

(U//FOUO) Please share this invitation with your colleagues. No RSVP or registration is required. Feel free to contact the Assessments Cell at [REDACTED] if you have any questions.

"(U//FOUO) SIDtoday articles may not be republished or reposted outside NSANet without the consent of S0121 (DL sid comms)."

---